INTRODUCTION

About this book

This book contains Entrance and Communion chants for the Mass in English. Chants are provided for all Sundays and major feasts of the year. A selection of chants are also provided for the commons. The chants in this book are provided in SATB form.

This book is written for church musicians by a ‘typical’, busy, parish musician. The chants are primarily written with cantors and choirs in mind, but their simplicity may also make it possible for them to be used in congregational singing in certain situations.

The author has attempted to balance simplicity, economy, flexibility and authenticity throughout.

For simplicity, a form of modern notation has been used in order to make the music immediately accessible to church musicians who may be unfamiliar with Gregorian notation. Texts are set directly underneath the music to avoid the difficulty of needing to learn how to sing pointed texts. The texts are set to (usually) straight-forward psalm tones, in which long melismas have been avoided.

Economy is achieved by a number of measures. As a result, the practice time required to learn the chants becomes pleasingly short (comparable to learning a hymn) once a choir or cantor starts using the chants from week to week.

The antiphons themselves are brief and may therefore easily be used on their own by a cantor or choir before or after a hymn. This is a good way of supplementing a congregational hymn with the text which is prescribed for that point in the Mass.

Psalm verses are also provided, and these may be added to elongate the chant – potentially allowing for the chant to be sung instead of a hymn.

For flexibility, the music is provided in this volume in SATB form, to enable singing in parts (if so desired) and/or to provide an organ accompaniment.

An appendix is also included which contains SATB parts for the Offertory psalm verses found in ‘Entrance, Offertory and Communion Chants’.

In order to achieve authenticity, the psalm tones are derived from various Gregorian sources (as described later) in modes I to VIII. The texts used for the chants are taken from official sources.

Why is this book needed?

In most Catholic parishes, a sung Mass will typically have hymns accompanying the Entrance, Offertory and Communion. This is quite understandable; there are many reasons why a hymn will often be a good choice for these points in the Mass.

However, although a hymn may very often be a good thing, it is not perhaps not ideal that hymnody has come to so completely dominate the music used at the Entrance, Offertory and Communion during the Mass.

The ‘General Instruction to the Roman Missal’ tells us that the music which should in fact take pride of place is the Gregorian chant found in the Roman Gradual (the Church’s official ‘music book’ for the Mass).

However, here we encounter a problem: the music in the Roman Gradual is melismatic, it is in an unfamiliar form of notation, it is not tonal (in a major or minor key) but is instead modal (a form of music which is less familiar to the modern musician) and it lacks a ‘clear tune’. Critically, the chant is in Latin, where a chant in English may often be desired for one reason or another.

(The Simple Gradual (the Church’s official, simpler music book) reduces some of these difficulties, but in turn presents issues of its own, and has not proved popular.)

There has long been a need for simple English settings of the Propers. Excellent efforts have been made in recent years to address this need. In particular, Adam Bartlett’s ‘Simple English Propers’ is a great resource, and Richard Rice’s ‘Simple Choral Gradual' has proved invaluable to many parish choirs. At the time of writing, there are other projects in the pipeline which are also being produced to fill this gap.

The author presents this book as an additional resource to be put at the disposal of the church musician of today. It is hoped that the particular features of this work, as described above, will make it of utility to church musicians in parishes and religious communities.

How to sing the chants in this book

The English antiphons and psalm texts have been set to chant tones which I have adapted from the Gregorian repertoire using a formula which is particularly well suited to the rhythm and accent pattern of the English language – the formula being that which has been used for centuries in the form of chant known as 'Anglican chant' (or 'English chant'). I believe that this form of chant does justice to the English language and results in a clear and intelligible rendering of English texts.

(I have taken these chant tones from my recent publication, 'English Psalm Tones Adapted from the Gregorian Repertoire' (available on lulu.com), which contains tones adapted from a variety of 'Gregorian chant' sources – in particular, the Office psalm tones, the Mass psalm tones, and various chants from the Roman Gradual.)

English chant is pretty straight-forward to sing. However, there are a few rules which should first be understood before attempting to sing this type of chant:

1. The words should be pronounced clearly and with natural emphasis.
2. The length of each note should be determined entirely by the natural pronunciation of the words. Therefore, whether the note is shown as semibreve or as a minim (and so on) does not actually determine the rhythm of the chant; rather the music is primarily governed by the natural pronunciation of the text.
3. The chant should be delivered at speaking pace (it is essential that the chant is not sung too slowly or else it will become rather dirge-like!).
4. At the double bar in the middle of the phrase, a short pause for breath should usually be observed. At the end of the phrase, a slightly longer pause should be observed.

Please also note the following symbols which I have used in this book:

5. Where the following symbol occurs, the singer should immediately proceed to the next block of text: ~
6. This symbol represents the end of a line, where a short breath may be observed: †.
7. This symbol represents an optional, short pause breath: `

Source of antiphon texts

The English texts for the Entrance and Communion antiphons are taken from the new translation of the Roman Missal.

It may surprise the reader to learn that the Entrance and Communion antiphons found in the Roman Missal do not always correspond to the equivalent texts found in the Roman Gradual: the Communion antiphons, in particular, are often quite different.

In the interests of avoiding confusion and keeping things simple, this book uses the Entrance and Communion antiphons from the Roman Missal, rather than the antiphons from the Roman Gradual, because these are the texts that most parishioners will have to hand (in their missal, missalette, or parish leaflet). In the author's view this is likely to be the most straight-forward, practical and confusion-free approach. However, the author entirely appreciates the arguments in favour of choosing the Roman Gradual texts for the Entrance and Communion instead, and therefore accepts that choosing the Roman Missal as the source of these texts will (inevitably) not please everyone. (A full discussion in relation to the distinction between the Propers in the Roman Gradual and the Roman Missal, and the arguments in favour of choosing one over the other is beyond the scope of this introduction.)

Source of psalm texts

This edition also contains some psalm verses to go with the Entrance and Communion antiphons, taken from the Revised Grail Psalter.

As indicated above, these verses are entirely optional, and can be used - entirely flexibly - to extend the chant in order to fit the liturgical action. For example, one could sing the antiphon, verse 1, the antiphon, verse 2, the antiphon, the doxology, and, finally, the antiphon; or one could simply sing the antiphon, verse 1, the doxology, and the antiphon; or one could use another combination, as required.

Although the text of the antiphon changes each Sunday, in this book, the psalm verses do not. Sundays and Feasts have been grouped together into units of (typically) two to four, with the psalm verses being kept the same by using one of the seasonal psalms prescribed in the Simple Gradual (the Church's official simpler music book for the Mass), rather than necessarily using the psalm prescribed in the Roman Gradual.

The result is a Gradual which lies somewhere in between the Simple Gradual and the Roman Gradual.

It is hoped that this method will ensure simplicity and minimise the required practice time for busy cantors and choirs, whilst also staying true to what holy Church desires us to sing at Mass. Also, keeping the psalm verses constant for a couple of weeks running has the added advantage of allowing the congregation to become a little bit more familiar with the psalm text in question.

However, the author appreciates that this editorial decision also has its downsides, and will again (inevitably) not please everybody. In particular, although there should still be thematic similarity between the antiphon and verses, the approach taken loosens the intimate connection between the antiphon and the verse.

Appendices can be found at the end of this book which set out, in particular, how the choice of psalm verses maps against the Simple Gradual and/or the Roman Gradual.

Other books in this series

Different church musicians have very different musical needs. To reflect this, a number of books are available in this series:

1. 'Entrance, Offertory and Communion Chants' - a short book containing only the antiphon texts (available on amazon.com).
2. 'Entrance, Offertory and Communion Chants: With Revised Grail Psalms' - a longer book containing both the antiphons and seasonal psalm verses for the Entrance, Offertory and Communion chants (available on amazon.com). The psalm verses are written out underneath the music for ease of use (rather than being pointed).
3. 'Entrance and Communion Chants: Choirbook with Revised Grail Psalms' - containing both the antiphons and seasonal psalm verses for the Entrance and Communion chants, set to SATB music for singing the chants in parts, or for use as an organ accompaniment (available on lulu.com). Also contains appendices with SATB parts for the Offertory verses in 'Entrance, Offertory and Communion Chants: With Revised Grail Psalms'.

It is also hoped at some stage to add 'Entrance, Offertory and Communion Chants: With Grail Psalms' and 'Entrance and Communion Chants: Choirbook With Grail Psalms' which use the original Grail psalms.

Twenty-Seventh Sunday in Ordinary Time

Entrance Antiphon

VIII

Within your will,
O Lord, all things are es - tablished, and there is none that can re - sist your will.

The first system of musical notation consists of two staves, treble and bass, in a key signature of one flat (B-flat). The melody is written in a simple, hymn-like style with long notes and rests. The lyrics are written below the staves, with hyphens indicating syllables that span across notes.

For you have made all things, the heaven and the earth, and all that is held with - in the circle of heaven;

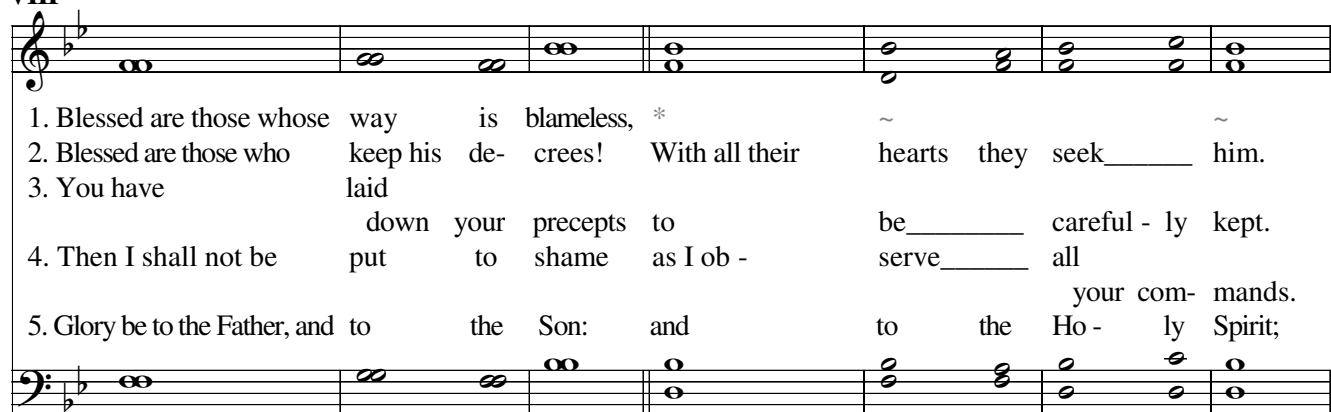

The second system of musical notation continues the melody from the first system. It also consists of two staves, treble and bass, in a key signature of one flat. The lyrics continue, with hyphens indicating syllables that span across notes.

you are the Lord of all.

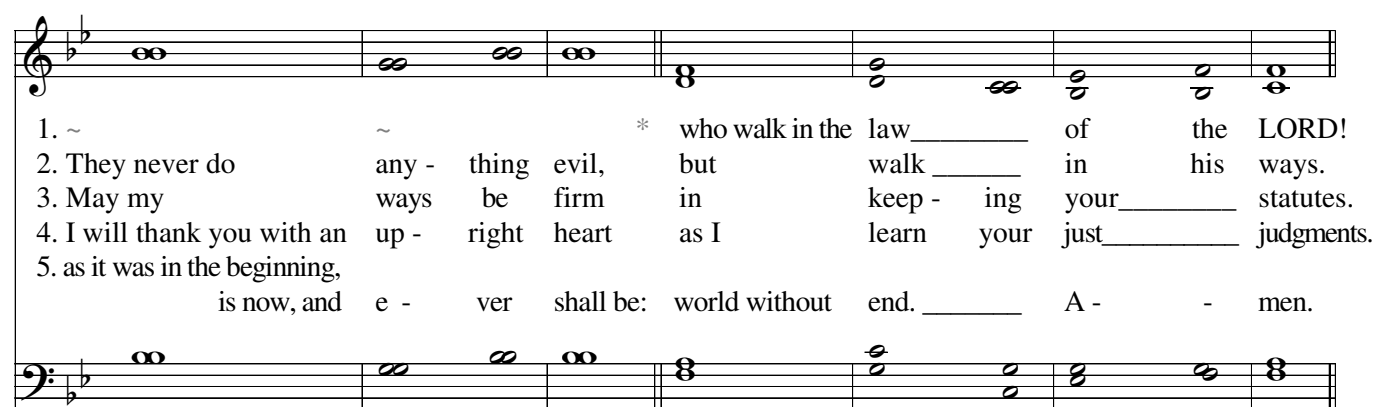

The third system of musical notation concludes the antiphon. It consists of two staves, treble and bass, in a key signature of one flat. The melody ends with a final note and a double bar line. The lyrics conclude with "you are the Lord of all."

Notes

Note 1 – Psalm for the Nativity, Mass During the Day from the Graduale Romanum.

Note 2 – Psalm for the Epiphany from the Graduale Romanum.

Note 3 – Psalm for the Baptism of the Lord from the Graduale Romanum.

Note 4 – The Sundays of Lent are each given a unique setting in the Graduale Simplex, however, for the purpose of simplicity, the first three Sundays of Lent have been grouped together in this volume.

Note 5 – No Entrance antiphon required on Good Friday and at the Easter Vigil.

Note 6 – Publications of the new translation of the Mass contain Entrance chants for Palm Sunday – please refer to these sources.

Note 7 – The Graduale Simplex contains an alternative form of entrance chant for use on Easter Sunday. Therefore the psalm is taken from the Graduale Romanum, and Mode VII has been adopted for simplicity (being the same mode as that used on Holy Thursday).

Note 8 – Psalm for Easter Sunday.

Note 9 – Psalm for Pentecost from the Graduale Romanum.

Note 10 – Psalm for the Seventeenth Sunday in Ordinary Time from the Graduale Romanum.

Note 11 – Psalm for the Twentieth Sunday in Ordinary Time from the Graduale Romanum.

Note 12 – Psalm for the Twenty-Sixth and Twenty-Seventh Sunday in Ordinary Time from the Graduale Romanum.

Note 13 – Psalm for the Twenty-Eighth Sunday in Ordinary Time from the Graduale Romanum.

Note 14 – Psalm for the Thirty-Third Sunday in Ordinary Time from the Graduale Romanum.

Note 15 – Psalm from the ad libitum Communio, Panem de caelo.

Note 16 – Psalm for All Saints from the Graduale Romanum.

Note 17 – Psalm for the Dedication of a Church from the Graduale Romanum.

Note 18 – Psalm for the Common of the Blessed Virgin Mary from the Graduale Simplex.

Note 19 – Psalm for Nuptial Mass (Timeo Dominum) from the Graduale Romanum.

Note 20 – Being the equivalent mode for the Introit (or one of the Introits) from the Graduale Romanum.

Note 21 – [Deleted]

Note 22 – [Deleted]

Note 23 – Antiphons specifically for Martyrs who were Missionaries, Virgin Martyrs and Holy Women martyrs are not included in this volume.

Note 24 – Antiphons for specific categories of Holy Men and Holy Women are not included in this volume.
