INTRODUCTION

About this book
This book contains Entrance, Offertory and Communion chants for the Mass in English. Chants are provided for all Sundays and major feasts of the year. A selection of chants are also provided for the commons.

This book is written for church musicians by a ‘typical’, busy, parish musician. The chants are primarily written with cantors and choirs in mind, but their simplicity may also make it possible for them to be used in congregational singing in certain situations.

The author has attempted to balance simplicity, economy, flexibility and authenticity throughout.

For simplicity, a form of modern notation has been used, and Gregorian notation (‘square notation’) has been avoided, in order to make the music immediately accessible to church musicians who may be unfamiliar with Gregorian notation. Psalm verses are set directly underneath the music to avoid the difficulty often presented when needing to sing pointed psalm texts. The texts are set to (usually) straight-forward psalm tones, in which long melismas have been avoided.

Economy is achieved by a number of measures. As a result, the practice time required to learn the chants becomes pleasingly short (comparable to learning a hymn) once a choir or cantor starts using the chants from week to week.

The antiphons themselves are brief and may therefore easily be used on their own by a cantor or choir before or after a hymn. This is a good way of supplementing a congregational hymn with the text which is prescribed for that point in the Mass. Psalm verses are also provided, and these may be added to elongate the chant – potentially allowing for the chant to be sung instead of a hymn.
For flexibility, an edition of this book is available with SATB settings for the Entrance and Communion chants, to enable singing in parts and/or to provide an organ accompaniment. Therefore, as well as being a useful resource for a cantor or small choir, it is hoped that this project will also be of some use to those choirs looking to sing in parts.

Additional settings of three of the ab libitum Communios from the Roman Gradual are also included at the end of this book.

In order to achieve authenticity, the psalm tones are derived from various Gregorian sources (as described later) in modes I to VIII. The texts used for the chants are taken from official sources.

Why is this book needed?

In most Catholic parishes, a sung Mass will typically have hymns accompanying the Entrance, Offertory and Communion. This is quite understandable; there are many reasons why a hymn will often be a good choice for these points in the Mass.

However, although a hymn may very often be a good thing, it is not perhaps not ideal that hymnody has come to so completely dominate the music used at the Entrance, Offertory and Communion during the Mass. The 'General Instruction to the Roman Missal' tells us that the music which should in fact take pride of place is the Gregorian chant found in the Roman Gradual (the Church's official 'music book' for the Mass).

However, here we encounter a problem: the music in the Roman Gradual is melismatic, it is in an unfamiliar form of notation, it is not tonal (in a major or minor key) but is instead modal (a form of music which is less familiar to the modern musician) and it lacks a ‘clear tune’. Critically, the chant is in Latin, where a chant in English may often be desired for one reason or another.

(The Simple Gradual (the Church’s official, simpler music book) reduces some of these difficulties, but in turn presents issues of its own, and has not proved popular.)
There has long been a need for simple English settings of the Propers. Excellent efforts have been made in recent years to address this need. In particular, Adam Bartlett's 'Simple English Propers' is a great resource, and Richard Rice's 'Simple Choral Gradual' has proved invaluable to many parish choirs. At the time of writing, there are other projects in the pipeline which are also being produced to fill this gap.

The author presents this book as an additional resource to be put at the disposal of the church musician of today. It is hoped that the particular features of this work, as described above, will make it of utility to church musicians in parishes and religious communities.

Notation

An adapted form of modern notation has been used which is broadly similar to that found in recent publications of the new translation of the Roman Missal.

Please note the following:

1. A full note head denotes a pulse of one beat:

```
\clef{G}
\note{s2}
```

2. A minim denotes a pulse of two beats:

```
\clef{G}
\note{s1}
```

3. Where a note is marked with a horizontal line, some slight elongation of the note is required:

```
\clef{G}
\script{tenuto}
\note{s2}
```
4. Tied notes are spaced closer together to imitate the style of Gregorian chant notation. The fact that the notes are closer together does not have any particular rhythmic significance. In the example below, the tied notes should be sung at the same rhythm as the untied notes:

\[ \text{\includegraphics[width=1in]{music-example1.png}} \]

5. The following denotes that one may take a very brief pause for breath if required:

\[ \text{\includegraphics[width=1in]{music-example2.png}} \]

6. This denotes that a short pause for breath should be observed:

\[ \text{\includegraphics[width=1in]{music-example3.png}} \]

7. This denotes that a longer pause for breath should be observed, and a slight ritardando may be inserted as one approaches the line:

\[ \text{\includegraphics[width=1in]{music-example4.png}} \]

8. This marks the end of a phrase, and a slight ritardando may also be used here:

\[ \text{\includegraphics[width=1in]{music-example5.png}} \]

Source of antiphon texts

The English texts for the Entrance and Communion antiphons are taken from the new translation of the Roman Missal.

It may surprise the reader to learn that the Entrance and Communion antiphons found in the Roman Missal do not always correspond to the equivalent texts found in the Roman Gradual: the Communion antiphons, in particular, are often quite different.
In the interests of avoiding confusion and keeping things simple, this book uses the Entrance and Communion antiphons from the Roman Missal, rather than the antiphons from the Roman Gradual, because these are the texts that most parishioners will have to hand (in their missal, missalette, or parish leaflet). In the author’s view this is likely to be the most straight-forward, practical and confusion-free approach. However, the author entirely appreciates the arguments in favour of choosing the Roman Gradual texts for the Entrance and Communion instead, and therefore accepts that choosing the Roman Missal as the source of these texts will (inevitably) not please everyone. (A full discussion in relation to the distinction between the Propers in the Roman Gradual and the Roman Missal, and the arguments in favour of choosing one over the other is beyond the scope of this introduction.)

The Roman Missal does not contain Offertory antiphons; instead, English translations of the Offertory texts found in the Roman Gradual have been used. These have been taken from the ‘Lumen Christi Missal’, with the kind permission of Adam Bartlett. (These Offertory antiphons were translated from the Roman Gradual as follows. Where English translations of the Offertory texts in the Roman Gradual could be found in one of the Entrance or Communion antiphons found elsewhere in the Roman Missal, these texts were used. Where not, the texts were translated into English from the Roman Gradual using the same principles - and the same style - of translation which underpinned the new translation of the Roman Missal.)

Source of psalm texts

This edition also contains some psalm verses to go with the Entrance, Offertory and Communion antiphons, taken from the Revised Grail Psalter.

As indicated above, these verses are entirely optional, and can be used - entirely flexibly - to extend the chant in order to fit the liturgical action. For example, one could sing the antiphon, verse 1, the antiphon, verse 2, the antiphon, the doxology, and, finally, the antiphon; or one could simply sing the antiphon, verse 1, the doxology, and the antiphon; or one could use another combination, as required.
Although the text of the antiphon changes each Sunday, in this book, the psalm verses do not. Sundays and Feasts have been grouped together into units of (typically) two to four, with the psalm verses being kept the same by using one of the seasonal psalms prescribed in the Simple Gradual (the Church’s official simpler music book for the Mass), rather than necessarily using the psalm prescribed in the Roman Gradual.

The result is a Gradual which lies somewhere in between the Simple Gradual and the Roman Gradual.

It is hoped that this method will ensure simplicity and minimise the required practice time for busy cantors and choirs, whilst also staying true to what holy Church desires us to sing at Mass. Also, keeping the psalm verses constant for a couple of weeks running has the added advantage of allowing the congregation to become a little bit more familiar with the psalm text in question.

However, the author appreciates that this editorial decision also has its downsides, and will again (inevitably) not please everybody. In particular, although there should still be thematic similarity between the antiphon and verses, the approach taken loosens the intimate connection between the antiphon and the verse.

Appendices can be found in the book ‘Entrance and Communion Chants: Choirbook with Revised Grail Psalms’ which set out, in particular, how the choice of psalm verses maps against the Simple Gradual and/or the Roman Gradual.

Music
The Entrance and Communion antiphons, and accompanying psalm verses, are set to a variety of psalm tones which have been adapted from various Gregorian chant sources. These psalm tones follow a formula which is well-suited to the rhythm and accent pattern of the English language (which is different in many important respects to the rhythm and accent pattern of Latin). More details about in this regard may be found in ‘Entrance and Communion Chants: Choirbook with Revised Grail Psalms’.
The Offertory antiphons are set to the Gregorian solemn psalm tones for modes I, II, IV and VIII (and, on some occasions, a setting of 'tonus perigrinus'). The solemn psalm tones have a quite different feel to the psalm tones used for the Entrance and Communion chants, which ensures a welcome degree of variety, also reflecting the fact that the Offertory chants in the Roman Gradual are usually considerably more melismatic than the Entrance or Communion chants. The Offertory chants may require a little practice at first.

Other books in this series
Different church musicians have very different musical needs. To reflect this, a number of books are available in this series:

1. 'Entrance, Offertory and Communion Chants' - a short book containing only the antiphon texts.

2. 'Entrance, Offertory and Communion Chants: With Revised Grail Psalms' - a longer book containing both the antiphons and seasonal psalm verses for the Entrance, Offertory and Communion chants. The psalm verses are written out underneath the music for ease of use (rather than being pointed).

3. 'Entrance and Communion Chants: Choirbook with Revised Grail Psalms' - containing both the antiphons and seasonal psalm verses for the Entrance and Communion chants, set to SATB music for singing the chants in parts (or for use as an organ accompaniment).

It is also hoped at some stage to add 'Entrance, Offertory and Communion Chants: With Grail Psalms' and 'Entrance and Communion Chants: Choirbook With Grail Psalms' which use the original Grail psalms.
Acknowledgements

I am grateful to Adam Bartlett, not only for his many enormous contributions to church music in recent years, but most particularly for his kind permission to use the translations of the Offertory antiphons from his 'Lumen Christi Missal' in this book.

I am grateful to the developers of lilypond, a freeware program which made the production of this book possible.

I would also like to thank Annette Singh for all her hard work helping with the music at St Peter's, Hatfield, and for singing these chants with so much skill over the last few years.

I am also enormously grateful to my dear family for their ongoing support while I have been working on this project.

IN. III

The designs of his Heart are from age to age, to rescue their souls from death, and to keep them alive in famine.

Psalm 32 (33)

1. Ring out your joy to the LORD, O you just; for praise is fitting for the upright.

2. Give thanks to the LORD upon the harp; with a ten-stringed lute sing him songs. O sing him a song that is new, play skillfully, with shouts of joy.

Dox. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Holy Spirit; as it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be: world without end. Amen.
My heart has awaited reproach and affliction, and I looked for one who would grieve with me, but there was none. I sought for one who would console me, and I found none. They gave me gall for my food, and in my thirst they gave me vinegar to drink.

Psalm 12 (13)

1. How long, O LORD? Will you forget me forever? How long will you hide your face from me?

How long must I bear grief in my soul, have sorrow in my heart?
How long shall my enemy prevail over me?

2. Look, answer me, LORD my God! Give light to my eyes lest I fall asleep in death; lest my enemy say, 'I have overcome him'; lest my foes rejoice when they see me fall.

Dox. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Holy Spirit; as it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be: world without end. Amen.

Peter said to Jesus: You are the Christ, the Son of the living God. And Jesus replied: You are Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church.

Psalm 18 (19)

1. The heavens declare the glory of God.

and the firmament proclaims the work of his hands.

Day unto day conveys the message, and night unto night imparts the knowledge.

2. The law of the LORD is perfect, it revives the soul.
The decrees of the LORD are steadfast, they give wisdom to the simple.

TRANSFIGURATION OF THE LORD

IN. II

In a responsive cloud the Holy Spirit appeared. The Father's voice was heard: This is my beloved Son, with whom I am well pleased. Listen to him.
Psalm 83 (84)

1. My soul is longing and yearning for the courts of the LORD. My heart and my flesh cry out to the living God.

2. Even the sparrow finds a home and the swallow a nest for herself in which she sets her young, at your altars, O LORD of hosts, my king and my God.

Dox. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Holy Spirit; as it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be: world without end. Amen.
You have crowned him with glory and honour;
and you have established him over the work of your hands, O Lord.

Psalm 8

1. O LORD, our LORD, how majestic is your name through all the earth!

2. Your majesty is set above the heavens. From the mouths of children and of babes you fashioned praise to foil your enemy, to silence the foe and the rebel.

Dox. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Ho-

Co. II

When I am lifted up from the earth, I will draw everyone to myself, says the Lord.

Psalm 2

1. Why do the nations conspire, and the peoples plot in vain? They arise, the kings of the earth; princes plot against the LORD and his Anointed.

2. He who sits in the heavens laughs; the LORD derides and mocks them.

Dox. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Holy Spirit; as it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be: world without end. Amen.
ALL SAINTS

IN. I

Let us all rejoice in the Lord, as we celebrate the feast day in honour of all the Saints, at whose festival the Angels rejoice and praise the Son of God.

Psalm 32 (33)

1. Ring out your joy to the LORD, O you just; for praise is fitting for the upright.

2. Give thanks to the LORD upon the harp; with a ten-stringed lute sing him songs. O sing him a song that is new, play skillfully, with shouts of joy.

Dox. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Holy Spirit; as it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be: world without end. Amen.

OF. VIII

Psalm 64 (65)

1. Praise is due to you in Si-on, O God.

To you we pay our vows in Je-ru-sa-lem, you who hear our prayer.

2. To you all flesh shall come. Our evil deeds are too heav- vy for us, but our trans-gres-sions, you wipe a-way.

Dox. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Holy Spirit; as it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be: world without end. Amen.

OF. II

O Lord Jesus Christ, King of glory, deliver the souls of all the faithful departed from the punishments of hell and from the depths of the pit. Deliver them from the mouth of the lion, that the netherworld may not devour them lest they fall into the darkness. But let Saint Michael, your standard bearer, lead them into heaven.
ven-ly light, as you once promised to A-bra-ham and to his de-scend-ants.

CO. IV

let per-pe-tual light shine u-pon them, with your Saints for e-ver for you are mer-ci-ful.

E-ter-nal rest grant un-to them, O Lord, and let per-pe-tual light shine u-pon them, with your Saints for e-ver for you are mer-ci-ful.

Psalm 129 (130)

1. Out of the depths I cry to you, O LORD, LORD, hear my voice! O let your ears be at-ten-tive to the sound of my pleadings.

2. If you, O LORD, should mark iniquities, LORD, who could stand? But with you is found forgiveness, that you may be revered.
