1. Rise thou! the savage winter on earth hath already ceased, laugheth in the meadows all the glory of the flowers, thou who hast been the nurturing Mother of Life, rise thou, O Mary.

2. Lily resplendent just as amidst the bramble thicket, alone thou treadest the author of death, gathering the fruit refused to the guilty fathers, from the tree of life.

3. Ark fashioned not from perishable wood, thou preservest the manna, whence virtue floweth, with which rise endowed with spirit

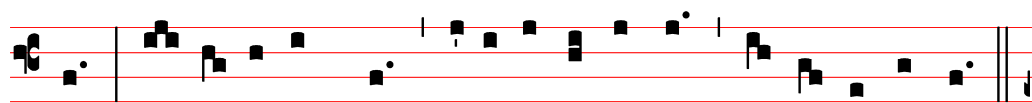

again the bones
from the sepulchre.

4. O meek
servant of the
protector of reason, by no means
thy flesh with pu-
trid mortal secre-
tions endureth to
be decomposed;
instead, as the
endless kindred of
thy spirit en-
campeth unto the stars.

5. Rise thou!
reach towards
heaven, thou who
art depended up-
on thy beloved,
accept thou the
diadem strung
from the stars,
and receive thou
the strain of thy
children echoing
thee a blessed
one.

6. Everlasting praise be to the eminent Trinity, Who upon
thee, O Virgin,
did bestow the crown, and
Which provident
Unity did set thee
as our Mother
and Queen.

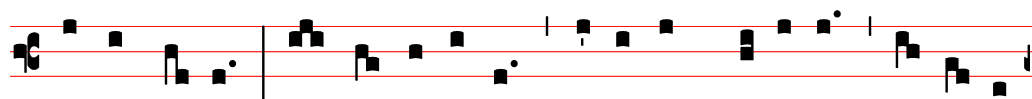

Amen.
